Outline Itinerary

Wednesday

From the Meeting Point at Porto Airport (see Flight Transfers below), I will arrange a coach transfer to our hotel in Vila Real in the centre of the Douro Valley.

At our first night dinner I will introduce both the still and fortified wines of the region.

Thursday

We head into the vineyards to see harvest in action, and the treading of the grapes in the historic lagares. The more adventurous among us will be able to try for themselves (this is not compulsory!). The boutique Quinta do Tedo (owned by the Bouchard of Burgundy family) and Casa do Romezal will give us contrasting insights into table and fortified wines.

Evening at leisure.

Friday

Today we visit two small estates: Terrus and Quinta do Tourais, home to vineyards that produce port and still wines, including some superb red wines. Over these two visits we will explore this beautiful region, tasting their wines and enjoying them with local cuisine.

Evening at leisure.

Saturday

Our final full day takes us along the Douro river allowing us to fully appreciate the beauty of our surroundings as well as tasting at different estates. In the evening we will have a final dinner together at the fabulous Quinta do Portal.

Sunday

No tour to this wonderful region is complete without a visit to Porto, and a historic port lodge (where port wines mature under the cooling influence of the Atlantic). We will head west after breakfast, arriving in Porto in time for a visit to Taylors Port lodge and lunch. We will still have plenty of time to transfer to Porto airport to coincide with the evening flight to London, as detailed in the Flight Transfers (see below).

Note: the Itinerary may be changed at Tim Syrad Wine Tours discretion so as to facilitate the smooth running of the tour and to accommodate great opportunities for visits or tastings that may become available.

More about my Douro Harvest Wine Tour

The tours I ran to Portugal in 2007 and 2016 were great successes. The beauty of Portuguese scenery and the warmth of the Portuguese welcome are incomparable, and I am very excited about returning, this time with a focus on the Douro.

While the Douro's fame is based on it being the home of Port production, the still red (and white!) wines that are being produced can be of extremely high quality. Winemakers rise to the challenges of one of Europe's most extreme climates (baking hot summers, freezing cold winters, and not a lot of rain), and equally extreme landscape (we will learn how the mountainous, steep valley sides have been tamed into vineyards), learning from centuries of tradition, and introducing new techniques.

The region of course has a long standing and close relationship with the UK, and many of the quintas we visit will have family connections. But this is Portugal, and the people we meet are fiercely proud of their heritage, their success at keeping Port the most prestigious of the fortified wines, and their future prospects - even though this requires them to be at the forefront of tackling the impacts of climate change.

In addition to the stunning scenery, our wine adventures will be complemented by superb local gastronomy. The modern road network supports a fantastic hospitality sector, and every day we will enjoy fresh produce and the traditional and modern approaches to preparing it. In addition to our first and final night dinners, we will have three lunches, in quintas or lodges, that will allow us to experience the wines we have been learning about with local dishes.

Due to the timing of the return flight from Porto to London, I am able to include a visit on the final Sunday, and it makes sense for this to be our Porto day. Porto, and neighbouring Nova Vila de Gaia, are home to the traditional lodges where Port wines are aged before release. Their climate is milder thanks to Atlantic breezes, and while modern climate control technology gives producers the choice of maturing their wines in the Douro itself, the historic lodges are still a key part of Port's culture and will make a wonderful culmination of our tour.

More about Tim Syrad Wine Tours

Since 2001 I have escorted over 100 groups of people on tours to wine regions in Europe and the New World. My clients keep coming back year after year because in addition to tastings and visits we really do meet the people who make the wine and tend the vines.

I pride myself in offering tours that are informative, imaginative and enjoyable. I keep group sizes manageable so that we spend our time appreciating our visits, not getting on and off the bus or queuing for the loos! I personally escort all of my tours, and I ensure as much as possible of the money my clients pay is spent on great food and wine, and good hotels.

I believe you can combine appreciating fabulous wine with relaxation and laughter, which is why so many of my clients come on tour with me every year. There is a friendly and welcoming atmosphere on every tour from the start, and I am proud that many friendships have been made between the people who come on tour with me.
